Holly Van Hart is an internationally exhibited artist known for her abstracted nature paintings.

Van Hart's work explores her fascination with the idea of the limitless opportunities we have in our lives. Images of abstracted forests, trees, fields, and flowers are used to symbolize abundance and the generation of new life and new ideas.

"Look carefully at each painting and you'll be welcomed into a world of realism contrasted with my abstracted view of nature. Take a visual stroll through these forests and fields. You'll see realistically painted trees and flowers, juxtaposed against vibrating blocks of color representing the sky, trees, leaves, fields and shadows. The overall effect is to balance the excitement of my visual world with the calm of nature, and to invite reflection of nature's abundance."

Holly Van Hart was born in New York, NY. She lives in Silicon Valley, California, and maintains studios in Silicon Valley and New York.

Van Hart's work has won many awards, including Grand Prize at the California Statewide Painting Competition, and Best of Houzz. Also, she was awarded a fellowship from the prestigious Clark Hulings Fund for Visual Artists.

She has had solo exhibitions at the Triton Museum of Art, University of California San Francisco, and Stanford University. Her work is exhibited internationally, and represented by fine art galleries across the United States.

Her paintings are in the collections of CxOs and other top executives of LinkedIn, Oracle, PwC, Roche, Adobe Systems, Hewlett Packard, Cisco, Google, Airware, Xilinx, Texas Instruments, Silver Lake, TCV, Stanford University and more.

Van Hart's paintings have been featured in the Huffington Post, Professional Artist Magazine, San Jose Mercury News, Examiner.com, Saratoga News, Santa Clara Weekly, Los Angeles Live Radio, and Silicon Valley 'Talk Art' TV.

She lives with her husband and two sons in Saratoga, CA. She is fascinated by other cultures and exploring new places. For business and pleasure, Van Hart has traveled to 40 countries and all 50 of the United States. Whether traveling or at home, she is an avid outdoorswoman. She has had many memorable experiences with kayaking, white water rafting, rock climbing, hang gliding and bungee jumping. But mostly she likes hiking in the California hills with her family and friends.
